

Dear Habitat Supporter,

Have you ever wondered about parallel worlds? There is one: the world of Ionut and Andreea Mance. It's a world many make efforts to contact, but only a few succeed, and the majority tend to ignore it. It is the world of people who cannot hear or say anything.

Ionut and his wife, Andreea, both in their 20s, live in Beius, Romania. They met at a vocation camp for people with speech disabilities, and now they have been married three years and have two children.

Although they tried hard to connect with the outside world, they could not break through. With no home of their own, they have been moving between shelters and temporary accommodation with damp walls, cold rooms and no proper kitchen or shower.

"If we cannot speak, people find it hard to accept us into their world," Andreea wrote. "But we won't give up."

Ionut and Andreea's connection to the world can be restored. With help from Habitat for Humanity Romania and international volunteers who travel to Beius this Easter, they will build a home of their own.

Home-building around Easter is a tradition that started in Romania 11 years ago. Each year, volunteers and families who need homes come together for one week to build. At the end of the great week, families move into new homes.

We need your support to make a miracle happen. Even a little amount can help buy materials and tools for the construction. If you cannot be with Ionut and Andreea on the build site, help them realize their dream. Help them build this Easter home!
